Nelson Says Du Veau Suggested | Expert Appraises Jewels Box by Schemes to Rob a Standard Oil Paymaster of $15,000 and Commit Other Crimes.

The remarkable story told by Oliver Nelson before Recorder Goff and a jury noon of the blue ribbon and first prize in General Sessions in the trial of Ed. to L. Biddle's four-in-hand road team gar Du Veau was corroborated to-day in the Madison Square Garden Horse in many details by the testimony of Show. County Detective Mullins, who posed as Alfred Vanderbilt's four-in-hand was Nelson's pal "Summers" in his dealings

Nelson, in the vernacular of "crooks." described with dramatic effect how Du Veau had proposed to him to "hold up" muel Lewis, a skirt manufacturer, of No. 117 Mercer street, and rob him of Wentze's team was even given second liamonds and money.

"I've got a girl who works for this fellow Lewis," Nelson swore Du Veau said to him. 'She is coming up here to-night and I want you to meet her. boss has a diamond pin and ring and watch and chain and carries from $40 to $60 in his pocket all the time.' "I was horrified at the suggestion of
